AV Solutions for All Industries

InfoCommAsia has brought together Asian buyers and global suppliers of information presentation and display technology since 1998. Its Integrated Systems series of trade exhibitions and educational seminars, first in Singapore and then in China, has provided the event organizer with extensive knowledge of the marketplace and a comprehensive database of market players in Asia. More significantly, the Asian pro-AV market has come to expect meaningful exchanges and learning at InfoCommAsia events. The company has gained recognition for its professionalism and dedication in delivering top rate technology and solutions to the Asian marketplace.

InfoComm Asia 2010 brings together a comprehensive display of the latest pro-AV, home automation, entertainment technology, and systems integration solutions and products from throughout the world. It is Asia's representative platform for international manufacturers and market leaders to offer cutting edge solutions and display their latest technologies for a wide spectrum of business and industry applications. InfoComm Asia 2010 also provides a trade platform for international suppliers to meet buyers from all of Asia and the emerging markets, while at the same time enabling Asian manufacturers to seek international trade representatives.

The InfoComm Asia 2010 Summit

Organized with the support of global industry association InfoComm International and in collaboration with leading industry media, the Summit will offer expert insights to all levels of personnel in the Asian market.

Senior management will benefit from the technology and business conferences addressing trends and industry issues, gaining valuable perspectives as well as ground applications from site visits to live installations. Sales and technical professionals can sharpen their skills and enhance their professional knowledge at the educational seminars on trade-based topics. All, including exhibitors, will enjoy opportunities to forge or renew contacts at the numerous networking soirees.
